

STATEMENT OF SHELLEY ELIZABETH LIGGETT

Tracey Newell got off before me and headed up the hill. Pauline went into Boss Hoggs. I shouted after them that I was going to phone my taxi. I used the phone box outside Jameson's and phoned [REDACTED] and asked him to pick me up at Tracey Newell's house in [REDACTED]. This was about 1 40 am. He said it would be about 20 or 25 minutes before he could collect me. After I'd phoned [REDACTED] I went into Boss Hoggs. There was a queue, Pauline Newell was up near the head of it and I shouted up to her to get me a super chip. I then walked up to the counter and got the super chip. By this time Pauline had just walked out of Boss Hoggs. The super chip was burning my hand so I went back into Boss Hoggs and got a napkin to hold it with. Outside I spotted Paul Currie and said I'll walk up with you, as he lives in [REDACTED] [REDACTED] not far from Tracey Newell's. I didn't notice anyone else at the time. Between Edward Street and Thomas Street junctions both of us crossed the main street and passed a police landrover, which was parked beside the building society at the junction of Woodhouse Street. When Paul and me got passed Bennetts and into West Street I heard shouting and a siren. I looked backed down the street towards the centre of the town and saw a crowd, maybe ten people. I didn't recognise anybody in the crowd as I was too far away. I didn't see anyone being assaulted. Paul and me just walked on up to Tracey Newell's house in Brownstown. I arrived there about 2 10 am. Tracey and Pauline Newell and Kelly Lavery were already there. Kelly shouted down that her and Pauline were in bed. A few minutes later Ronnie Benson arrived and took me home. I got into the house about 2 20/2.25 am. Paul Currie didn't come into Tracey Newell's house and I
