

Gordon Kerr QC quizzed him at length and in depth but he stubbornly maintained his assertion that he could not remember what happened and only wrote in the statement what the police told him to write. He stated that he is not scared to give evidence although he admitted that he did not want to give evidence. He indicated that his desire not to give evidence was not affecting his inability to remember.

This witness will not give any evidence of any value whatsoever.

R. Davison

R DAVISON

24 October 1997