

Land Rover at the Alliance & Leicester Building Society. I cannot remember now whether we saw any police officers outside the Land Rover. It was normal to see police somewhere in Portadown, but I could not really say whether I would expect more police at the junction of Thomas, Woodhouse and Market Streets. Although there had been trouble with sectarian clashes at this junction in the past, I did not have any reason to be concerned that night. I had never witnessed any clashes myself but they were always reported in the news.

5. When we got to the Chinese I cannot remember now whether there was anyone at the Chinese that I knew. However, Judith mentioned going around to Tracey McAlpine's house in Brownstown. I did not really know Tracey but I think she was one of Judith's friends. When we got to Tracey's house obviously Tracey was there but I could not say who else was at the house. I was quite drunk and from what I was told I fell asleep. I am not sure if I fell asleep in the living room or in the bedroom. I cannot remember if I even spoke to anyone while I was there. We did not stay long at Tracey's.
6. I have been asked about various people who are connected with this and I can say that at the time I knew Stacey Bridgett. I would usually see him around the Estate and if we were out at night, for example if we went drinking at one of the pubs down the town. Similarly, I was friends with Marc Hobson and also Andrew 'Fonzy' Allen, who lived in the same area as I did. I would meet up with them socially then. I still pass them and speak to them, but I do not bother to socialise with them any more.
7. I know that Stacey was arrested and charged in relation to Robert Hamill's murder but that is not something that we ever discussed. It probably never came up. I was not interested as to how he came to be implicated. I am aware that Marc was actually prosecuted and convicted of affray in relation to the murder. However, again, I did not have any conversation with him about what had happened that
