On Friday 31st October 1997 at about 8.30 pm I called around to the Hamill house at [REDACTED]. I spoke to Fiona and Diane. I had told them I had been to see the DPP in Belfast and explained what happened. We got round to talking about the three persons that got released that day and who had been charged with the murder of Robert Hamill. I said I hadn't seen the news. They had it on video and showed me it. I think it was footage from the BBC which was on at 6.30 pm but I'm not sure. It showed three males walking out through a fenced area. Of the three males I recognised one as the person that I had seen in the back of a landrover and which the police had lifted. At the time of the incident he was wearing a Rangers scarf. I pointed this out to Diane and Fiona and both of them told me that this person was called Forbes. I looked at the video footage about three times and although I recognised him the first time I am certain that this was the person I'd seen on the night of the murder of Robert Hamill. The video played at normal speed and it lasted approximately twenty seconds.
