

there was cars pulling up while I was going up, I am not too sure.

Why did you not go up the side of the First Trust Bank, if you wanted to get your nose, you wanted to let it bleed in peace, why did you not go away up the right hand side of the street, away from the disorder, next the First Trust Bank, Clarkes Shoe Shop.

BRIDGETT I was away on up.

Surely that would have been the most logical route to take away from this if you wanted to get off side.

BRIDGETT Sure the fighting was at Eastwoods, I was away up at Dorothy Perkins there. There was nobody there.

But you had to cross, you crossed over towards the whole fracas.

BRIDGETT I wasn't worried where I was running to as long as I got away from the man that punched me on the nose. I was worried as long as I
