And see is anybody hanging about. See is anybody in the Queens which is a prod pub down at the bottom of Thomas Street. See is there anybody hanging about there.

Aha.

P40

Mandeville Street, you've pubs up round there. There's different flash points so there is. Mandeville Street sometimes you get drunks congregating there and then at Dunnes car park, the tunnel.

Aha.

P40

The Nationalist end, sometimes.

Yes.

P40

You'd get confrontations there. You're monitoring all those there.

Right.

P40

And then if you see anything developing you take it from there. Ask for back up or whatever, if there's anybody on the periphery.

OK. Who's in charge when you go out like that there. Is it the driver or is it the senior man or.

P40

It's usually a senior man so it is.

And the senior man on this occasion was.

P40

It's Alan Neill.

Yeah. How often did you see or during your time in Portadown have you seen sectarian conflict. Issues such as that St Pat's or the tunnel end or whatever.

P40

How many.

Ehm.

P40

A brave few.

A brave few could mean one or it could mean twenty or it could mean hundreds.

P40

If I said thirty, fifty.
